THE grand ball to be given by Alex Orchard in the lower story of Temperance Hall, this place, next Friday night, will be largely attended. Every town in the Basin and Garden Valley will be represented, and a jolly time is anticipated.

SHERIFF EDWARDS, of Custer county, arrived here Wednesday, to take Chas. Purcell, arrested at this place, back to that county. He left yesterday morning with the prisoner, and will go via Boise City and Wood River. Purcell is the man who shot Jas. Smith near Cape Horn, a few weeks ago.

WONDER if Bill Nye, the great western humorist, can see anything funny about a cyclone now, since he was lifted by one and had a leg broken in two places. Bill has cast many a slur at the wild, unbridled cyclone of the west, and now he can give his own experience of how it feels to be hit by one on a wild rampage.

IRON pipe, made by John Kennaly, is being laid from the hose-house to the town reservoir, or to the sand-box near the reservoir. Hose has been used heretofore. As soon as the pipe is all laid the Fireman will take out the hose-cart, turn the water on, and have a general practice in coupling the hose and in everything that it is necessary for them to be familiar with in case of a fire.

JOHN GORMAN, in allowing his name to go on the Democrat ticket in place of Art. Cunningham's who declined the nomination, did so reluctantly. No one else could be found who was willing to accept, and at the solicitation of his friends, Mr. Gorman became a candidate for re-election. Had he been an aspirant for the office he could have received the nomination at the convention.

MYER & SMITH have just received a new and fine lot of cigars—3500 of the "After Dinners," "All the Go," and "I. C. U." We dropped into the store the other day and addressed Walt. Galbreath, M. & S.'s affable, genial clerk in the following language—kind of mystic to Walt, as we supposed "twould be, but it wasn't: "I see you have just received something that is all the go after dinner. Let's have some." Walt, reached for the boxes, and at the same time remarked: "I see you see that I see that which is all the go after dinner," and here they are—good ones too," and then he handed out all we could cram into our breeches pockets. They are good ones. If you think we're not a judge of a good cigar, go and try 'em yourself. The "After Dinners" are three for a quarter, the "I. C. U." ten cents apiece and "All the Go" are five for a quarter.

The Political Fishermen Bait Their Hooks.

Both the Democratic and Republican Territorial Conventions recognized the justice and importance, to the northern counties of Idaho, of annexation of these counties to Washington Territory. Queer, isn't it, how they change bait to catch the voters? Good idea, too, in one way. If the little fishes in the political pool will not take one kind of bait they will another, for bait they must and will have. Two years ago, Singiser, the boss Republican fisherman, winked his eye, and says, "think I will put on the annexation fly," and he hooked on a big, green fellow. Geo. Ainslie, the Democratic angler, says, "Go ahead, Sing, drop in your hook. But let me tell you you're a mighty poor fisherman. You'll catch a few away up in the narrow place at the north end of the pond, but you'll fish in vain for bites south of there, and then George hooked on the big, regulation Mormon worm, and as he watched him squirm he laughed a happy, roaring laugh, and says, "You bet your brand new boots I'll learn Sing a little trick or two." Sing went to the north and George to the south, and each dropped in his hook. As George marched south he gayly sang, "Marching on to victory with my worm, big fat worm," and Sing sang the same tune as he went north, but with the words changed to suit, running thus: "I'm marching on to victory with my fly, big green fly!" When George dropped in his hook he sang "Rally 'round the worm, pollygs, bite it once again, shouting the battle cry of victory!" and they rallied and bit—all went for it. Then George said to himself: "Good bait, you bet. I knew it was, for I've tried it before. Now I'll get in my little boat, sail around the center of the pond, and fish for another species, and will bait with the handsome, red-winged, anti-annexation grasshopper. They'll be hungry for it. Sing is welcome to the few he can catch in the narrow neck up north." But the fish in the center of the pond didn't go for the grasshopper as he thought they would. Either the bait was not the right kind, or George's shadow on the water frightened 'em away—probably the latter. Sing caught about all of them in the north end, and made a huge haul in the center. When they (Sing and George) quit, Sing's string was considerable the longer of the two, the fishes on Sing's string outnumbering those on George's about three thousand. Those who sent George out on this fishing expedition were sorely perplexed when they gazed on the two strings and compared one with the other. They couldn't agree as to the why-for-ness of the thushness of the amazing resultness of the actual and real result. Some said the bait was not the right kind, while others contended that George was failing as a fisherman. This time they send out a new man with a different kind of bait.

Hon. John Hailey is the regularly selected fisherman, and the Democracy, seeing how admirably Sing succeeded two years ago in getting away with the prize, wisely said this time: "Verily Sing's bait is the right kind, for it has been tried, and the fishes went for it. Now we'll furnish our fisherman with the same kind of bait—the annexation fly. We ought to be able to yank 'em as well as Sing, and with Sing's bait and a first-class fisherman, we hope to win the prize." The hooks are baited and the fun of the contest will soon commence. Next November we'll see who has the string that takes the prize.

The forefinger of Jas. Constable's right hand was badly mashed some time ago by being caught in some part of the machinery attached to a cross-cut saw. Dr. Zipf, seeing that it was useless to try to save the finger, amputated it, Wednesday, at the second joint.

THREE men came through here the other day from Sheep Mountain. They informed us that the Daily boys and others who a few weeks ago had about concluded to remain there all winter and work and develop mines and prospects, have given up the idea and will soon quit for the season and come out.

JAS. MCINTYRE, and Charley Marcus and two of his boys took a trip to the capital Monday in Mc's conveyance, as also did Rev. Anderson and wife. Charley and the boys and Mc. returned on Wednesday. We have been informed that the Methodist Conference will not furnish us a preacher for the coming year. If they do not Mr. and Mrs. Anderson will not return.

Two old typos, Dave Adams and Guy Newcomb, are up for office in Owyhee county—Dave for the Assembly and Guy for Sheriff—both on the Republican ticket. Guy was nominated on the sixty-third ballot. Adams and Newcomb were at one time publishers of the Avalanche. If the boys use good judgment in the "distribution" of political influence and "set 'em up" plenty for the voters, they will "knock into pi" the chances and expectations of their opponents, without doubt. Although on the wrong side of the political fence, Dave and Guy are popular with the people of Owyhee.

THE Statesman says Col. E. A. Wall, who attended the Democratic Territorial Convention with two proxies from Shoshone county, was appointed on the platform and resolutions committee, and after the resolutions were completed, he offered the preamble and resolutions on polygamous Mormonism adopted by the Democratic Convention of Alturas. Jo Rich, a Mormon, and a member of the committee, objected to Wall's preamble and resolution, Ed. Johnson, of Lemhi, being the only one who endorsed them. After the reading of the regular platform and resolutions in convention, Col. Wall asked that the minority report containing the resolution he had offered in committee be read by the Secretary. This was refused, and the vote was taken and carried upon the adoption of the report of the committee. Wall then made a motion, seconded by Johnson, that his preamble and resolution be read. This was agreed to and the reading elicited applause in the lobby. Col. E. A. Stevenson then moved that the resolution be laid on the table, which was carried, Johnson voting in the negative. Col. Wall then arose, thanked the convention for courtesies extended, asked leave to return his proxies, and tendered his resignation as delegate in the convention. He then retired from the hall and was loudly cheered by the lobby.

COL. E. A. STEVENSON placed Hon. John Hailey in nomination for Delegate in Congress at the Territorial Convention, and on Mr. Stevenson's motion the nomination of Hailey was made unanimous. The Democrat says Mr. Hailey was then waited upon by a committee to inform him of the choice of the convention. He was introduced by Mr. Morris in a choice worded sentence. Mr. Hailey was received with warm enthusiasm and replied in a telling speech.

BIDS will be received for finishing lower Hall of the Odd Fellow's building, at this place, the work to be commenced two weeks from next Monday. The bids will be considered, and with the right to accept any one or reject all. The plans and specifications will be prepared in two or three days, and can be seen at Myer & Smith's store.

Resolutions Adopted by the Idaho Democratic Convention.

To the chairman and members of the Territorial Democratic Convention—Gentlemen:

Your committee on platform and resolutions would respectfully report the following and recommend its adoption:

Very respectfully,

A. J. BOYKIN,
T. M. JEFFREYS,
J. C. RICH,
B. F. MORRIS,
E. A. WALL.

The Democratic Convention now assembled, congratulate the people of Idaho Territory upon the auspicious outlook of Democracy, not only in our Territory but throughout the length and breadth of the United States.

We endorse as the wisest and best platform ever adopted for the guidance of a free people, that of the National Democratic Convention held in Chicago July 8th, 1884, and pledge ourselves to the faithful adherence of the principles therein enunciated.

Resolved, That in the course adopted by the Republican administration in appointing non-residents to rule and govern us in Territorial affairs, men, who in many instances have no direct interest with the settler or the development of our young and rising State, we recognize a danger, and unjustness that but illy repays the pioneer for the dangers he encountered in making these mountains and valleys habitable to man, and we demand that men who had the hardihood and energy to face the stealthy red man, to bridge the streams, hew down the mountains and utilize the virgin soils of our valleys, are capable of administering our laws, knowing our wants and giving us all proper relief.

Resolved, That we hail with pleasure the influx of the hardy sons of toil in the agricultural and farming districts of the Territory, and as the Democratic party has always been the true friend of the pioneers of all industries, we, therefore, favor the passage of such laws by Congress and our Legislatures, as will give to the farmers of our Territory a protection against encroachments of land monopolies and fraudulent entries of public lands as against the bona fide settlers.

Resolved, That we regard our mines as one of the most important factors in the list of our growing industries, and we are in favor of a law that will protect the miner in his wages and make him a preferred creditor, and to that end, favor proper legislative enactments to secure his rights as such preferred creditor.

Resolved, That we recognize the full weight, justness, importance, and final result of the claim of our citizens of Northern Idaho in their annexation views, and here in open convention, backed by an honest democracy, we pledge to our Northern neighbors a willingness and co-operation on our part to accede to their wishes on this proposition in a mutuality of feeling that shall bind us together fraternally now, and sow the seeds of eternal friendship when the separation may come, and we ask our Northern friends to accept this pledge in the honesty of its intention, and with the full assurance that it is based upon the promise of a permanent resident, political organization, and not the imported vibrations of homeless, faithless, wandering political mendicants.

Resolved, That in the persons of Grover Cleveland and T. A. Hendricks, the National nominees of Democracy for President and Vice-President of the United States, we recognize the embodiment of the principles on which our government was founded, and principles on which its perpetuity must depend.

Resolved, That the condition of our Territorial Treasury now justifies and we favor and demand, the total repeal of the Territorial proportion of what is known as the Poll Tax Law.

Resolved, That the nominee of this convention pledges himself to the support of the principles herein promulgated.

The above resolutions were unanimously adopted. E. A. Wall made a minority report which was temporarily laid on the table.
